The central document to the Brenntag's compliance framework is the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics. It encompasses the fundamental principles for the Brenntag Group's overall business activities in fields including, but not limited to, human rights and labour practices, health and safety, and foreign trade compliance.

As set out in the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics, the Brenntag Group is a signatory of the United Nations Global Compact initiative and has committed to incorporating its principles into our corporate culture. Brenntag respects and supports the protection of internationally proclaimed human rights. We do not tolerate any behavior which violates human rights and will not be complicit in human rights abuses. This standard is applicable to our supply chain which is subject to supplier assessments and audits.

Our Supplier Code of Conduct

The Supplier Code of Conduct applies to any non-Brenntag entity that provides goods or services to the Brenntag Group, including products suppliers, service providers, distributors, agents, consultants, and others ("Suppliers"). Brenntag Canada, as with other Brenntag Group entities, expects that its Suppliers will adhere to its Supplier Code of Conduct.

Pursuant to the Supplier Code of Conduct, our Suppliers are expected to provide a workplace that is free from harassment, coercion, verbal abuse, and discrimination. We have zero tolerance for any kind of involuntary or forced labour, including but not limited to bonded, indentured, involuntary prison labour, or child labour, occurring within our supply chains. We expect that our Suppliers will observe all applicable laws and regulations. Relatedly, we expect that our suppliers will take measures to engage with the third party services which they employ or contract to communicate the expectation that they also act in accordance with the law and contribute to a work environment that respects human rights.

Further, we expect our suppliers to respect the rights of their employees to associate freely, seek representation, join works councils or unions, and engage in collective bargaining. Our Suppliers are required to take measures to ensure that third party services which they employ or contract also act in accordance with the law and contribute to a work environment free of harassment.

2023 Living Wage Policies

The Brenntag Group takes its commitment to equitable and respectful employment seriously. In 2023, the Brenntag Group implemented living wage policies specifying that the salaries of all Brenntag employees should meet living wage standards, which applied to Brenntag Canada. Brenntag works together with an organization that provides living wage data for all the countries in which Brenntag operates.

In accordance with the guideline, Brenntag completes an annual process to identify any living wage gaps (gap analysis), where remuneration at Brenntag is compared against the living wage data. Any gaps are to be permanently closed.

In some countries in which the company operates, the statutory minimum wages are less than an adequate income. In the Reporting Period, a gap analysis was again carried out together with external service providers with a view to determining where at Brenntag there are employees whose salaries do not meet living wage standards. Any gaps brought to light by the analysis were then closed by making appropriate salary adjustments, as a result of which no members of staff were employed below living wage standards at the end of the reporting period.

Whistleblowing

Employees and third parties can report human rights violations via the whistleblower line. In the Reporting Period, the global compliance department provided employees and third parties with new, additional whistleblowing channels for this purpose, accessible through Brenntag's various websites, including the website for Brenntag Canada.

The Brenntag Group also implemented a case handling system used primarily by the compliance and internal audit departments in the context of investigating reports.

As was also the case in the previous year, Brenntag did not receive any reports of human rights violations, including Modern Slavery, within the company in the Reporting Period.

Global Sourcing Organization

The Brenntag Group has a Global Sourcing Organization (the "GSO") that serves as the centre for sourcing industrial and specialty chemicals and ingredients from emerging markets to Brenntag's customers and subsidiaries globally. The GSO provides access to selected suppliers with quality products and value-added services who share in the Brenntag Group's commitment to quality, reliability, innovation, sustainability, and customer satisfaction. The Brenntag Group's GSO team holds offices in Beijing, Shanghai, Taipei, Mumbai, Singapore, and Seoul and is formed of 50 experienced and highly skilled specialists for the different industries who closely cooperate with Brenntag regions worldwide. The GSO audits producers and provides transparency of Asian supply chain cost, value, and risk.

Together for Sustainability

Since 2016, the Brenntag Group has been a member of the industry's Together for Sustainability ("TFS") initiative. One core element of the joint work within TFS involves audits or online assessments of companies in various industries, including the chemical industry.

The Brenntag Group works together with EcoVadis, a leading provider of sustainability assessments that is well established in the chemical industry. EcoVadis evaluates companies in terms of four categories: environment, labor and human rights, ethics and sustainable procurement. In doing so, it scores the companies' sustainability performance on a scale from 0 to 100. In addition, each company receives a detailed overview of strengths and weaknesses as well as specific suggestions for improvement.

POTENTIAL RISKS IN OUR OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAINS

In 2023, the Brenntag Group, took the following steps to prevent and reduce the risk of child and forced labour being used in our supply chains and activities:

- Updated the Supplier Code of Conduct;
- Updated the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics;
- Introduced an internal reporting and governance system to the existing whistleblower program; and
- Conducted a wage assessment to evaluate living wages within our organization.

Risks in our Operations

Brenntag Canada considers the risk of Modern Slavery occurring within our operations to be low. This is specifically due to the fact that Brenntag Canada's workforce exists only within Canada, which has comprehensive and strict labour, employment, and human rights laws. In addition, Canada has been categorized as a "low risk" jurisdiction as it relates to the risk of Modern Slavery according to Walk Free, an international human rights group focused on the eradication of modern slavery, in all its forms.

Risks in our Supply chains

As a subsidiary of Brenntag, our supply chains directly benefit from the policies and due diligence implemented at the parent level and amongst the Brenntag Group that are designed to assess the compliance of their respective supply chains.

We recognize that the risks of child and forced labour are inherent to all supply chains, including ours. However, we rely on the policies of the Brenntag Group to identify and reduce these risks.

Through our assessment of Brenntag Canada, we did not identify any unique risks child and forced labour that relate to our operations or supply chains. Rather, the Modern Slavery risks applicable to Brenntag Canada are more general in nature.

Further, we are not aware of any instances of child or forced labour in our operations or supply chains. Accordingly, no steps were required to remediate child or forced labour, or the loss of income associated with remediation efforts.

Chemical manufacturing is, generally, an area of low risk for child and forced labour. However, the primary sector industries from which our suppliers source their inputs, such as mining, agriculture and the petrochemical industry, pose risks of child and forced labour potentially caused by, contributed to, or directly or indirectly linked to our operations.

The Brenntag Group seeks to minimize these potential risks of human rights violations within its supply chains by communicating its expectations to suppliers at the beginning of the business relationship and through the combined effect of the policies and strategies outlined in this Report.

Most of our suppliers are subject to, and in compliance with, anti-Modern Slavery laws and regulations in Canada and the United States. We view the risk of child and forced labour occurring within our supply chains to be low.

To date, we have not received any reports of instances of Modern Slavery occurring anywhere within Brenntag Canada. As we did not identify any instances of forced labour or child labour in its supply chain in 2023, no steps were required to remediate the presence of Modern Slavery, or the loss of income associated with remediation efforts.

TRAINING

As a global company, the Brenntag Group is subject to a large number of local, national and international laws and regulations. It is the responsibility of all employees to comply with these rules without exception. The Brenntag Group has developed internal regulations that employees are expected to follow. Examples of such internal regulations developed by Brenntag include the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics and the Anti-corruption Guideline.

The Brenntag Group also offers regular training through resources such as the Brenntag Group's e-learning platform in order to keep employees' knowledge of compliance topics up to date. As an example, the online training module on the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics is mandatory for employees once a year. This was completed by 96% of Brenntag group employees in the reporting period.

ASSESSING OUR EFFECTIVENESS

We intend to continue reviewing and updating our regulations and policies periodically, as appropriate, to determine any changes that would reinforce our approach to preventing and reducing child and forced labour from taking place anywhere in our business or supply chains, and, where appropriate, implementing measures to assess the effectiveness of any of our processes.
