J.D. IRVING, LIMITED

Introduction and Scope of Report

J. D. Irving, Limited is committed to delivering quality products and services to its customers, and in doing so we strive to maintain, improve, and continue to adapt our procurement processes and safeguards to reduce the risk of forced labour and child labour within our supply chain.

This report is made pursuant to the Government of Canada's Fighting Against Forced Labour and Child Labour in Supply Chains Act (the Act) for the 2023 reporting period. This report outlines JDI's commitment to compliance with the Act. This is a consolidated report applicable to the companies and divisions listed in Schedule A (collectively referred to as JDI), each of which is a reporting entity (or a division of a reporting entity) under the Act.

JDI's Structure, Activities, and Supply Chains

JDI's supply chain activities in connection with its Canadian reporting entities are performed by procurement professionals and supply chain departments within the JDI group of companies. JDI selects suppliers after performing the appropriate due diligence during the on-boarding process. JDI's supply chain procures goods and services for the purposes of then providing goods and services (i) to third-party businesses, (ii) to individual consumers at the retail level, and (iii) to JDI affiliates in a vertically integrated business structure. JDI's supply chain also procures a wide array of goods and services for internal consumption within the respective businesses.

An example of JDI’s vertically integrated business structure is the JDI Forest Supply Chain. The JDI Forest Supply Chain is made up of businesses in the forestry, forest products, and consumer goods sectors. The supply chain includes forests, tree nurseries, logging and reforestation operations, lumber, peat and horticultural products, Kraft pulp, paper, corrugating medium, consumer tissue, and diaper manufacturing. JDI transports its products by road, rail, and sea through its affiliated transportation businesses and third-party carriers, and forest products are shipped to 30 countries around the world.

JDI consists of the following business divisions:

Assessment of JDI's Supply Chain and the Risk of Forced Labour or Child Labour

JDI has analyzed the locations of all its Tier 1¹ suppliers in the supply chains for its Canadian reporting entities in furtherance of preparing this report and has determined that for the 2023 reporting period more than 90% of its Tier 1 suppliers were resident in the traditionally low-risk jurisdictions of Canada, the United States of America, Europe, and the United Kingdom. JDI has not identified any specific parts of its Tier 1 supply chain that carry risk of forced labour or child labour.

As set out below, JDI has measures in place applicable to its Tier 1 suppliers to reduce the risk of forced and child labour in the supply chain of the products they provide to JDI. Consequently JDI's assessment of the risk of forced labour or child labour within its supply chain is low.

JDI is committed to contribute to the fight against forced labour or child labour and therefore JDI will continue to build on its existing risk-mitigation measures. In 2024, JDI is focusing on identifying additional processes and risk-assessment solutions that can be implemented to increase JDI's visibility into risk within its supply chains downstream of its Tier 1 suppliers. This will enable JDI to perform validation of the risk-mitigation measures in place with its Tier 1 suppliers in order to confirm they are performing as intended, and to determine whether additional measures are needed.

¹ For the purpose of this report, a "Tier 1" supplier is a legal entity that a JDI reporting entity directly contracts with, or otherwise directly purchases goods or materials from. In the interest of transparency, the Tier 1 supplier of a particular good may not be the manufacturer of the good and may not be resident in the same geographic area as the manufacturer.

Steps JDI has taken to Reduce the Risk of Forced and Child Labour and JDI’s Policies and Due Diligence Processes in relation to the Risk

Supplier Social Responsibility Code of Conduct

JDI maintains a Code of Business Conduct and a Supplier Social Responsibility Code of Conduct.

The Supplier Social Responsibility Code of Conduct is available on JDI’s website, and it directs suppliers as follows:

“Child Labor

Suppliers must not directly (or indirectly through the use of its subcontractors) employ underage individuals as defined by applicable child labor laws.

Forced Labor

Suppliers must not use forced labor or involuntary prison labor, which means any work or service performed involuntarily under threat of physical or other penalty. Suppliers shall respect the freedom of movement of its workers and not restrict their movement by controlling identity papers, holding money deposits, or taking any other action to prevent workers from terminating their employment. If workers enter into employment agreements with suppliers, workers should do so voluntarily.”

Under the Supplier Social Responsibility Code of Conduct, suppliers are asked to allow and assist JDI in periodic audits of compliance and it states a violation of the code may result in the termination of JDI’s business arrangement with a supplier.

In 2024, JDI will be enhancing the current supplier on-boarding process so that the Supplier Social Responsibility Code of Conduct is expressly communicated to, and acknowledged by, potential suppliers during the on-boarding process. In addition, JDI will develop and implement an audit process to periodically validate supplier compliance.

Code of Business Conduct

As mentioned above, JDI also maintains a corporate Code of Business Conduct that is applicable to all JDI companies and employees. The two guiding general business principles of the Code of Business Conduct are “Integrity and Honesty” and “Compliance with Laws.” In particular, the Code of Business Conduct requires that:

- Employees must comply with all laws, rules, and regulations.
- Employees must adhere to the spirit as well as the letter of the law.
- Employees must not participate in activities that could involve JDI in any unlawful or improper practice.
- Employees are expected to conduct themselves with honesty and high ethical standards, as well as abide by all anti-corruption laws.

The Code of Business Conduct states that a violation of the code may result in disciplinary action, including termination of employment. If the breach also constitutes a violation of law, then civil or criminal proceedings may result. The Code of Business Conduct undergoes regular reviews and updates as deemed necessary by JDI.

Supplier Onboarding Process

JDI currently vets its supply chain through its standardized supplier on-boarding process and by performing due diligence regarding the financial, quality, and legal standing of suppliers. In some cases, this includes the use of the third-party platform, ISNetwork, a global leader in contractor and supplier information management.

In 2024, JDI will assess its supplier pre-qualification and on-boarding process, and perform a market screening of the third-party tools that are available to it, specifically with a view to further mitigating the risk of forced labour or child labour, as well as environmental, social, and governance (ESG) risks.

Contracting Standards and Supplier Certifications

As a part of the supplier onboarding process, suppliers are required to acknowledge and accept terms and conditions applicable to the supply of goods and services to JDI (the JDI General Terms and Conditions). The JDI General Terms and Conditions require suppliers to contractually agree to comply with all applicable laws in the performance of the contract and provide all information necessary for JDI to comply with all applicable laws, including legal reporting obligations, in the countries of origin and destination.

JDI will be reviewing the JDI General Terms and Conditions to consider whether updates are warranted to specifically address supplier compliance with forced labour and child labour laws.

Training

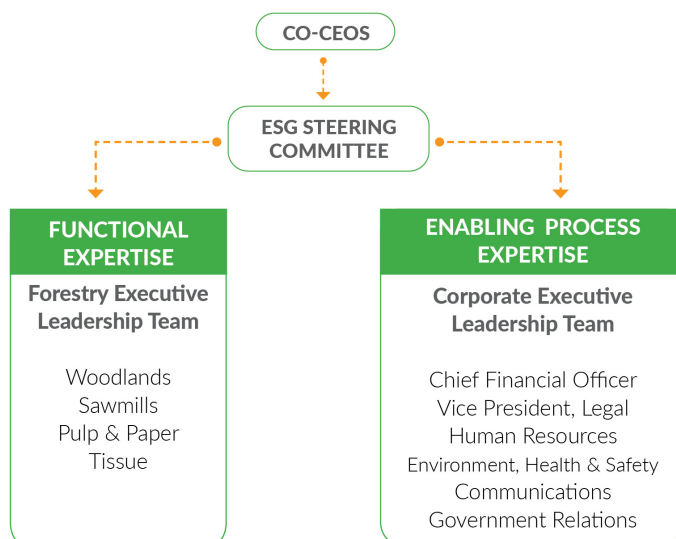

JDI maintains a suite of in-house training and development resources. Amongst these is SkillSoft, a digital corporate learning platform available to all JDI employees. SkillSoft offers courses on the following topics: supply chain risk management; organizational ethics, ethical challenges, and ethical responsibility; labour law, employment law, and employment legislation; and corporate governance and corporate ESG.

In 2024, JDI will leverage its in-house training and development resources to offer internal training for JDI supply chain employees related to supply chain risk management, including the risk of forced labour and child labour in supply chain activities.

Climate, Conservation, and Community Impact Report

JDI maintains an ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) Steering Committee to manage and disclose topics related to the climate, conservation and community impact of the Forest Supply Chain. The ESG Steering Committee is comprised of functional expertise from the executives and senior leaders in each of the Forest Supply Chain divisions – Woodlands, Sawmills, Pulp and Paper and Consumer Products – and enabling process expertise from the corporate executive teams – Finance, Legal, Human Resources, Safety, Communications and Government Relations (see the diagram below outlining the structure of the Steering Committee). Together the executives are responsible for sharing ESG-related information with their management teams to ensure information is communicated to all employees and linked to operating plans for execution.

The ESG Steering Committee is currently focused on environmental sustainability strategies in the JDI Forest Supply Chain, including sustainable forest management, forest conservation and biodiversity, climate change action and adaptation, air and water quality, safety, community engagement, and business ethics. The Forest Supply Chain is committed to disclose information on its climate, conservation, and community impact annually in a public report with external assurance.

Whistleblowing

Finally, consistent with JDI values, JDI encourages all employees who witness any unethical behaviour or code of conduct violations to report directly to our anonymous whistleblower program. JDI’s Whistle Blower policy is embedded within the Code of Business Conduct, which is available to all employees. The JDI Tips Line, “See Something – Say Something”, is staffed 24-hours a day, seven days a week by trained security officers. All anonymous tips are reviewed and actioned by an independent investigator. The JDI Tips Line is included in the Code of Business Conduct and is advertised throughout the organization on posters and through presentations by our security staff.

Identification of Risks of Forced Labour and Child Labour, Effectiveness in Preventing Forced Labour and Child Labour, and Associated Remediation Activities

In addition to the information disclosed above, the Act requires that reporting entities disclose the following:²

“(d) any measures taken to remediate any forced labour or child labour;

(e) any measures taken to remediate the loss of income to the most vulnerable families that results from any measure taken to eliminate the use of forced labour or child labour in its activities and supply chains;”

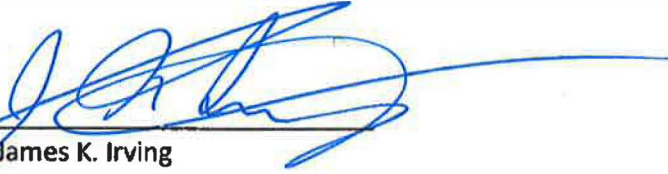

No instances of forced labour or child labour have been identified within JDI’s supply chains, and therefore JDI has not been required to take any of the measures described in (d) and (e) above.
