

2024 Report on Prevention of Modern Slavery

Modern slavery, also described as forced labour and child labour, is the exploitation of people for personal or commercial gain (please refer to Appendix A hereto for detailed definitions for the terms modern slavery, forced labour and child labour). The following report (the “Report”) has been prepared by Logan Energy Corp. (“Logan” or the “Company”) for its fiscal 2024 year to highlight how we are identifying and mitigating modern slavery risks throughout our business, in compliance with Canada’s Fighting Against Forced Labour and Child Labour in Supply Chains Act (the “Act”). The use of “we”, “us” and “our” refers to Logan.

Disciplined execution is a core pillar of Logan’s business strategy. This discipline extends to conducting our operations ethically, with a high standard of safety and environmental performance, and positive involvement with the people and communities who work with us to achieve our goals. We expect our stakeholders to share the Company’s commitment to responsible business practices, including our prohibition against any form of exploitation including modern slavery.

Our company and operations

Logan is a Calgary, Alberta, based company that is engaged in the business of exploration, development and production of crude oil and natural gas properties and assets, focused in the Montney resource trend in the areas of Simonette and Pouce Coupe in northwest Alberta and in the Flatrock area of northeastern British Columbia. The Company has also recently established a position within the greater Kaybob Duverney oil play with assets in the North Simonette, Ante Creek and Two Creeks areas. Logan is incorporated under the Business Corporations Act (Alberta), and its common shares are listed on the TSX Venture Exchange under the trading symbol “LGN”. As at December 31, 2024, Logan had no subsidiaries. Additional information regarding the Company’s operations is available on our website at www.LoganEnergyCorp.com or on our SEDAR+ profile at www.sedarplus.ca.

Our steps taken to prevent and reduce the risk of modern slavery

Since the promulgation of the Act, we have taken several key initiatives in alignment with our commitment to the reduction of modern slavery risks. During fiscal 2024, Logan took the following steps to prevent and reduce the risk of forced labour and child labour:

- Updated our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (the “Code”), which provides a framework for ethical behaviour, to specifically address and prohibit engagement in modern slavery.
- Required employees and contractors to acknowledge and sign off on the Code, with sign off required on an annual basis.
- Maintained our Whistle Blower policy to provide a safe and anonymous process for disclosing complaints or concerns, including complaints pertaining to potential or actual violations of the Act.
- Engaged in conversations with our Board of Directors and our Audit Committee about the Act, disclosure contained in this Report, and our approach to mitigating the risks of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.
- Began assessing the inherent risk of our supply chain, including sending a survey to our suppliers to better understand their policies taken in regards to prevention of modern slavery.

- Updated our supplier terms and conditions to specifically address modern slavery and require that suppliers provide such information as requested by the Company to enable our compliance with the Act.

Our supply chain

Logan's operations are conducted within western Canada, with our immediate supply chain primarily consisting of local third-party providers of goods and services. Logan predominantly sources its goods and services within Canada and does not directly source goods or services outside of North America.

Logan's supply chain includes skilled and trained labour forces utilized to execute drilling of our wells, construction and installation of our equipment and facilities, operation and maintenance of our assets and transportation of our production, among other activities common to the oil and gas sector. Logan procures materials and equipment from suppliers such as chemicals, pipe, casing, pumps, compressors, etc. to facilitate our operations and development of our oil and gas properties.

Our assessment

Logan works with suppliers and service providers that the Company believes to be reputable, and our operations are conducted in accordance with both Canadian provincial and federal laws. Logan has assessed the inherent risk of modern slavery in its immediate supply chain to be low. However, a risk of modern slavery may exist in the Company's second or third tier supply chain related to materials potentially imported from developing countries to fabricate goods purchased locally by Logan.

In 2024, Logan sent voluntary surveys to our suppliers and service providers to better understand the risk of modern slavery within the secondary and tertiary levels of our supply chain. Approximately 75% of our suppliers and service providers completed the survey. The completed surveys received by Logan indicate that a majority of the suppliers and service providers who responded and identified as engaging in the production of goods or importation of goods into Canada have policies in place to address and prevent modern slavery.

Our policies and monitoring

Logan's Code provides a framework under which Logan's operations are conducted and applies to all directors, officers, employees, consultants and contractors of Logan. The Code not only requires Logan's operations to be conducted in compliance with laws, rules and regulations, but mandates ethical behavior that respects people and requires safe working environments. The Code was amended in 2024 to specifically address concerns regarding forced labour and child labour. Employees and contractors are required to review and sign off on the Code annually, which requires not only compliance with the Code, but also to report any concerns regarding non-compliance with the Code.

Logan's Whistleblower Policy provides a process for disclosing complaints or concerns regarding financial matters and other matters, including violations of our Code. The Whistleblower Policy allows for confidential and anonymous reporting and prohibits retaliatory action against reports made in good faith. Logan responds to whistleblower complaints (if any) with due care and full investigation, involving appropriate individuals at senior levels of the Company.

Concerns regarding modern slavery can be reported directly to the Chair of our Corporate Governance and Compensation Committee at the following email address: GovernanceCommitteeChair@LoganEnergyCorp.com.

Our remediation and effectiveness

Logan has not identified any actual instances of modern slavery in its supply chain, therefore no remediation measures have been required. Logan will continue to assess the effectiveness of its policies and monitoring of modern slavery by investigating any complaints received. Based on the nature of any complaint received, Logan will determine measures to be taken to remediate any modern slavery or loss of income, in addition to determining what improvements can be made to preventative policies. Logan will monitor and implement best practices within our sector both to mitigate the risks of modern slavery and to develop systems to assess our effectiveness in doing so.

Our training

Logan is comprised of a small team, consisting of 19 employees in its head office and 1 field employee as at December 31, 2024. Given the small size of our team, our values and culture to act ethically are strongly reinforced throughout our day-to-day activities, with training primarily taking the form of awareness. Meetings have been held internally to raise awareness of the Act, the potential areas of risk on our supply chain and to reiterate our commitment to act in an ethical manner. Additionally, members of Logan’s management team attended information and training sessions put on by subject matter experts.
